American Traveler-James Zieg 2009-03-06 Called a “man of genius” by his close friend Thomas Jefferson, John Ledyard lived, by any standard, a remarkable life. In his thirty-eight years, he accompanied Captain Cook on his last voyage; befriended Jefferson, Lafayette, and Thomas Jefferson; was the first American citizen to see Alaska, Hawaii, and the west coast of America; and set out to find the source of the Niger by traveling from Cairo across the Sahara. His greatest dream, concocted thirty-eight years before, was to find the source of the Niger. Instead of focusing on the great rulers of the period—Peter, Catherine, and Alexander—the study examines the workability which alone could make their power effective. LeDonne not only gives a full chronological account of the development of bureaucratic, military, economic, and political institutions in Russia in this period, but also skillfully analyses the ways in which local agencies and the ruling class exercised control and shared power with the absolute monarchs.
